- 1. Cut a piece of fabric 25x25cm (10x10 inches).
- 2. Cut a second piece of lighter, cheaper backing fabric 20x20cm (8x8inches).
- 3. ['Backing' is a sheet of material that is hooped and embroidered along with the fabric you're embroidering. This material acts as a stabiliser, supporting the fabric and stitches during the embroidery process.]

4.If you are not going to use a hoop you will need to attach the two together either using tacking stitches or long machine stitches.

5. You need to mark a 15x15cm square (6x6inches) on the embroidery fabric. This is the area that you will be working in. You can mark it with tacking thread, removable fabric marker or pencil.

- It is best to choose a colour scheme. If we all choose the same we can maybe share threads. For 'A' I have chosen blue.
- 7. Start with a patterned fabric. You will be using the colours on this fabric as a basis for the other fabrics that are added.

- 8. Choose more fabric off-cuts and threads in the shades and colours of your original choice.
- 9. The 'binca' has been chosen because it will help when using square-shaped stitches. Checked fabric would work just as well.
- 10. Cut an initial letter out of felt. We will be starting with 'A' and working through the alphabet.
- 11. Tack all these together: the backing, the fabric pieces and the felt letter.

- 12. Choose some threads that will bring out the colours of the original fabric piece.
- 13. Find beads, sequins, ribbons and other embellishments that you could use.

14. The work should fit in an 8 inch (20 cm) hoop - if this is how you like working. However, it is not essential to work with a hoop.
