

Imagine you have purchased a second-hand heavy winter coat. As Spring has arrived, people are clearing out their wardrobes and sending good quality clothes to your local charity and you saw this coat in the window. It's a perfect fit, looks like it's never been worn, and you could never have afforded the coat had you purchased it new as it's a designer item.

Your writing challenge is to write a short story about what item you found in the silk inside pocket and what dilemma that brings you? What do you do about it, if anything?

{Remember – this is a challenge, a project – not homework, so you don't have to do this; but I hope you want to!}

Make your story unique, unexpected. Don't be predicable or if it's a typical item found in the pocket, give it an unusual outcome or dilemma. Have fun!
