Anglesey Abbey - The House

Lord Fairhaven bought Anglesey Abbey in 1926 and gifted it to the National Trust in 1966 on his death. As an avid collector of antiques, he amassed a vast selection of paintings, silverware, clocks and other items which can be seen throughout the house. Immerse yourself in Lord Fairhaven's way of life as you visit the house.

Anglesey Abbey - A garden for all seasons

There's always something to see at Anglesey Abbey whatever the season. From the vibrant colours, textures and scents of the Winter Garden, carpets of Snowdrops in spring, the Herbaceous Border and Rose Garden in summer, Dahlias in late summer and amazing colours in autumn. Due to the unusually warm weather this winter many of our snowdrops, daffodils and aconites are flowering early this year.

Lode Mill

The origins of Lode Mill can be traced back to the Domesday Book of 1086. Step inside the historic watermill and discover how grain is transformed into wholesome flour.
