

Brill Walk Tuesday 9th May

Our walk this month was from the hilltop village of Brill starting at The Green, around and through Chinkwell Wood, and back up to Brill. On the way we encountered a group of cows but fortunately they were not interested enough to get up to investigate us. We saw some bluebells as we walked through the wood and before we emerged onto open fields again we had to tackle two poorly maintained stiles. Once out into the open there was quite a challenging climb back up to the village, which should have been rewarded by spectacular views across the vale of Aylesbury around to the Warwickshire border to the north west; unfortunately poor visibility stopped us seeing too far. Once back in the village we had an enjoyable lunch at the The Pheasant.
