

WALKING THERE – John Parry/Brian Windsor

October 2023

Our walk this month missed all the rain we have experienced recently. A fairly small group of us set out on this 5mile walk in ideal walking conditions, not too hot or too cold, dry and with a light wind. We started down the side of Whittlesley Dike on the Hereward Way, a 110mile long distance footpath, until we turned back on a footpath beside Bevills Leam, one of the waterways of the Fens built around 1630. We had a refreshment break sitting on some old tree trunks before making our way back to our cars.
