

GARDENING

Your gardening group has had their winter break and is back on the promenade each Monday morning, weather permitting.

Talking of weather, the last few months have not been as severe as the 2022/23 winter, and certainly the cabbage palms have survived much better than last year.

Spring does seem to be on its way and so it has been a good time of the year to be out in the fresh air and appreciate the succession of new blooms that we have had on the promenade already from heathers, irises, snowdrops, crocuses and daffodils, with more to come.

Hopefully, looking ahead we will be planting more snowdrops "in the green" to flower in spring 2025!

Brian Lewis