Monumental Inscriptions in St Andrew's Church, Burton Overy

About the Project

The recording of the monumental inscriptions inside and outside the church was undertaken as a summer project for the University of the Third Age, (U3A) Great Glen Family History Group in 2007. All care has been taken to ensure accuracy of the transcription, however a visit to the church or churchyard to check with the original inscriptions is recommended.

Words from many inscriptions were unable to be read for reasons such as broken stones, writing worn away through time etc., and so some blank spaces occur in the transcriptions. The aim was to record the words exactly as they are found on the stone – so variations in spelling are a common occurrence.

Some of the very old graves were transcribed and published in 1798 in a book called 'The History and Antiquities of Leicestershire' by Nichols and this can be seen at the County Record Office. Where the script was found to be unreadable, a few words have been taken from these transcripts and identified in [] brackets to help the researcher.

Burton Overy

In ancient writings, the village was referred to as Burtone, Burton Novrey, and later Burton Overy. It is seated in a valley on the brook, which rises in the lordship of Frisby, near Gaulby. It is bounded on the west by Great Glen, on the north by Little Stretton and Norton, on the east by Carlton and Ilston and on the south by Kibworth and a small part of Wistow. It is nearly equidistant from Leicester and Harborough – about 9 miles from each, and in the ecclesiastical division of the county, which is within the deanery of Gartree.

Burton Overy has a long history, and is well documented back to the reign of Edward the Confessor in The History and Antiquities of the County of Leicester, by John Nichols (Volume II)

The Church

The humble medieval church, dedicated to St Andrew, consists of a nave, a north aisle, a spacious chancel, and a tower in which there are three bells.

In the chancel are three stone seats and a piscine. The pulpit and desk are handsome. There is a 15th century screen of richly carved oak and an old ironbound chest

The font is circular and plain. Over 400 years ago Hugh Weston, who grew up to be dean of Westminster and preacher to Mary Tudor, was baptised. He was confessor to the duke of Somerset and Sir Thomas Wyatt at their execution, and presided at the trial of Cranmer.

In 1220, this church was under the patronage of the abbey of St. Ebrulf at Urica in Normandy. The then person was Ralph, instituted by William archdeacon of Leicester, who paid four marks to the abbey of old time.

By 1753, the patronage of Burton Overy, which had belonged to the Rev. Chapman Dolby, was transferred to the Rev. Paul Southworth, who married his daughter, and in 1763 it became the property of the Rev. John Lee.

In the churchyard, in front of the rectory, is an oak tree planted at the restoration from an acorn of the famous oak at Boscobel. It is a grand old veteran, keeping a watchful eye on one of its own children, a young oak grown from one of its acorns to celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of the Victoria Era

J6	Sacred to the memory of CHRISTIAN ANN the wife of Major WILLIAM FAWCETT who died 22 March 1823 age 31 years seven days after the birth of her only child WILLIAM HENRY who died 19th March 1823 age 4 days. She was endear'd to all her family &amp; friends by the most amiable &amp; affectionate disposition and was equally distinguished for the cultivation of her mind. The suavity &amp; elegance of her manners and the piety &amp; beneficence of her heart her afflicted husband deeply impress'd with a just sense of her many virtue, &amp; inestimable worth in all the public, private, religious, and domestic paths of life; has inscrib'd this mournful tablet to her memory with feelings of inviolable affection &amp; esteem and unutterable regrets for her untimely loss. He thought the morning of his hopes begun.  And ken'd the flatt'ring prospect rich and fair;  He felt her presence as the rising sun  Dawning on a day devoid of care:  Alas! 'twas but a dream, delusion's glare,  Which quickly faded from his ravish'd sight;  The sky born vision heeded not his prayer.  But meteor like, beaming with celestial light,  A lucid moment shown, then setting, all was night!	White marble plaque
J7	This tablet was erected by his affectionate family to the memory of The Revd WILLIAM SOUTHWORTH LEE, formerly rector of this parish, and one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for this county: who died December 18th 1828; aged 68. Sincerely respected and beloved by all who knew him.	White marble carved to look like a casket

Her modest worth, her condescending mien,  Her resignation, brighter made each scene;  Of virtue lost,- like this, to soothe the pain,  Faith whispers peace: to her, 'to die was gain.'	White marble plaque

A few interesting grave-stones

Script on both sides of Grave No. F 61

Some became readable after careful cleaning

Sadly for some, it was too late
