About the Project

The recording of the monumental inscriptions inside and outside the church was undertaken by members of the Family History Group of Great Glen U3A. All care has been taken to ensure accuracy of the transcription, however a visit to the church or churchyard to check with the original inscriptions is recommended.

Words from some inscriptions were unable to be read for reasons such as broken stones, writing worn away through time etc., and so some blank spaces may occur in the transcriptions. The aim was to record the words exactly as they are found on the stone – so variations in spelling are a common occurrence.

Some of the very old gravestones and floor slabs were transcribed and published in 1798 in a book called 'The History and Antiquities of Leicestershire' by John Nichols and this can be seen at the County Record Office. Where the script was found to be unreadable, a few words may have been taken from these transcripts and identified in [] brackets to help the researcher.

These recordings are also posted on the Leicestershire Villages Web Site – under the village of 'Stoughton'.

Stoughton

The following information is taken from

- John Nichols – ‘The History and Antiquities of the County of Leicester’ Vol II Published 1798
- Arthur Mee ‘The King’s England’ – Leicestershire and Rutland – Stoughton, Published Sept 1948.

In ancient writings, Stoughton was referred to as Stoctone. It was an extensive Lordship, within the parish of Thurnby, and contained 1,500 acres. Amongst the free tenants was Richard, son of Walter de Stocton

Stoughton lies in the hilly and wooded country a little east of Leicester, in pleasant lands that once belonged to the abbey where Cardinal Wolsey lies.

In 1391, there were two mills at Stoughton – a water mill and a wind mill, valued at £4.

In 1557, the value of the manor of Stoughton (distinct from the Grange) was £433..15s..8d. and in 1564 there were seven families living in Stoughton.

Sir Thomas Beaumont died in 1614, seised of the manor of Stoughton (worth £4) and the rectory of Stoughton and Thurneby, and Sir Henry Beaumont was the only resident freeholder in 1630. Stoughton continued uninterrupted in that family until it passed by marriage to Mr Keck.

Four persons only were polled from Stoughton in 1719, and by 1722, not one freeholder occurred. By 1775, Anthony James Keck Esq., is the only name, being the principle landowner of the whole lordship excepting about 300 acres, which was given to Henry Smith for charitable uses.

The Mansion House which stood in a low situation, had a Gothic appearance, and the occupier at that time carried out extensive repairs. The large grounds afforded fine pasturage, and was used as a park for deer. The grounds were extensive and enclosed with brick walls. A large sheet of water ran by the side of a long walk, which extended from Stoughton Hall almost to Evington – the length of $\frac{3}{4}$ mile, on each side of which grew some lofty trees which shaded the passage.

The Church of St Mary and All Saints

The (almost) 700-year-old church, dedicated to The Virgin Mary, consisted of an embattled tower, (in which were four bells), a handsome rocketed spire, nave, modern chancel, a north aisle separated from the nave by two round and two pointed arches, the greater part of which was railed off with wood painted blue, as a burying chapel for owners of the Grange; a south aisle separated from the nave by four pointed arches; a south porch, a north door and a church-clock.

The church has many other memorials. There is a fine tomb of Thomas Farnham, (referenced in this book as J8), Teller of the exchequer under Mary Tudor, showing him as a solemn bearded man with a chain over his armour, his wife by his side in embroidered gown, ruff and cap, and their two sons and three daughters below. One of these daughters appears again on a wall monument, kneeling with her husband Sir Thomas Richardson, Speaker of the Commons in a Parliament of Charles the First, and set up this monument.

Peril on the seas – Rear Admiral Beaumont is lost on Godwin Sands.

Others of the famous Leicestershire Beaumonts who have marble memorials here are Admiral Basil Beaumont, who was drowned with all the sailors of his flagship when it floundered on the Goodwin Sands in the Great Storm of 1703, and Sir George Beaumont, friend of Dean Swift and MP for Leicester in nine Parliaments. Swift came to see him at his manor house and may have preached there.

The Cross in Stoughton Churchyard

Those who seek the church will first encounter the 14th century cross in the shade of the limes of the churchyard. It has been called the most beautiful of all the county's crosses, and there is something in its fluted slenderness, and the elegant simplicity of the shaft with its sculptured capital, to justify such praise. It stands like a warden over the simple memorials of simple folk, surrounding it.

The Cross in
Stoughton
Churchyard

Churchyard crosses appear in the medieval period. According to one author, these later crosses were 'intended to both sanctify the churchyard and to provide a corporate memorial to the anonymous dead of the parish', at a time when individual gravestones were not the norm.

The most common form / shape for the top of these crosses was a tabernacle, but there were also cross heads and wheel heads and needless to say, many surviving examples are now without their uppermost parts.

There is another good example in Scraftoft churchyard.

J1	Near this spot the interred remains of ANTHONY JAMES KECK of Stoughton Grange Esq who with unsullied integrity represented in Parliament, for many Years the Boroughs of Leicester and Newton in Lancashire, and both in publick and in private life, justly acquired, and retained the Respect and Esteem of all acquainted with him. To these his loss was severe, to his Family irreparable; he departed this life aged 42, and was deposited Feby. 28th 1782 in the adjoining Family burying – place: near the remains of his lamented Mother, ANNE, Sister and heiress of WILLIAM BUSBY of Stoughton Grange Esq. He married ELIZ^H second daughter of PETE^R LEGH of Lyme Esq and by her had six Children of whom PETER ROB^T ANTHONY died an infant and was buried here January 11th 1768. ELIZABETH, who died also an Infant, and was buried here February 5th 1773. ANTHONY PETER BEAUMONT, who died young and was buried here, March 14th 1777	Marble Plaque
J2	Also, PEERS- ANTHONY KECK of Stoughton Grange Esq^r who died unmarried aged 28, and was buried here March 12th 1797. Emulous of the bright Example bequeathed to him by his Father; he was snatched from his Friends and the World, in the early exercise of genuine Benevolence: But the tender Sorrows of all who knew him, of a surviving brother, and of this neighbourhood: which could well appreciate his many excellent and endearing Qualities, will long record the sacred truth of this mournful Testimony	Underneath J1 Marble Plaque
J3	Within the...and the...rest the.....beloved by him in the ...are deposited the mortal remains of GEL ANTHONY LEGH KECK Esq of Bank Hall in the county of Lancaster and of Stoughton grange in this township. He represented the county of Leicester in nine parliaments and the long continuance of this delegated trust sufficiently attests the confidence of his constituents during that most eventful period between the years 1797 and 1831. When uprooted thrones and desecrated altars convulsed other countries and endangered the safety of our own. Amidst such times he evinced an unshaken fidelity to his King his country and his God: and in 1831 relinquished all public duties save only the command of the Leicestershire Yeomanry Regiment which he had held from the date of its original formation in 1802. In the more congenial scenes of private life brightened by an approving conscience he calmly prepared himself for another and better world: humbly hoping for future and eternal happiness by a steadfast faith in the mercies of God. Through the mediation of our redeeming Saviour Jesus Christ Ob^t Sept 4th 1860, aetat 86. “Blessed are the dead that did in the Lord” ----- In affectionate memory of him whose patriotic and useful life is here recorded. This church was restored from the foundation of his nephew Major the Hon[’]ble HENRY LITTLETON POWYS KECK	Marble Plaque

J4	Sacred to the memory of ELIZABETH second daughter of ROB'T VERNON ATHERTON Esqr of Atherton Hall in the county of Lancaster: and the beloved wife of G A LEGH KECK Esqr of Bank Hall in the same county and of Stoughton Grange in this township Obit 21st January 1837 aetat 63. Exemplary in the discharge of every duty she lived without an enemy and died universally lamented, leaving a memory mournfully embalmed by the sorrow of a bereaved husband: and of very many surviving friends with a deep conviction of religious truths she enjoyed the hope of a blessed immortality through a firm faith in the atoning merits of a crucified Redeemer and in the mercies of Almighty God . Oh reader may we emulate her bright example and by a corresponding faith and practice here may we participate in her hopes of eternal happiness hereafter.	Marble Plaque
J5	In affectionate remembrance of Major The Hon'ble HENRY LITTLETON POWYS KECK of Stoughton Grange late 60th Rifles founder of The Soldiers Daughters Home at Hampstead. Fifth son of THOMAS 2nd BARON LILFORD and his wife HENRIETTA MARIA eldest daughter of ROBERT VERNON ATHERTON of Atherton Hall Lancashire Born March 29th 1812 Died July 10th 1863 Also of MARGARETTE MATILDA his wife, 2nd daughter of JOHN BANCHO ESQ'r who died June 21st 1845 and was buried at Eglish in Ireland ----- “The Lord knoweth them that are his” ----- In the church-yard lie the precious mortal remains of this true soldier of the cross ----- The fight well fought, the victory won ----- Noble in bearing, impetuous by nature, he learned to know himself and his great captain and submitted as a little child to the humbling doctrines of the Gospel ----- Strict in discipline, his heart was tender, his love strong as death. In all the trials of a soldiers' life, duty was his single aim and his joy. And when called to a position of wealth and influence he endeavoured only to let his light shine before men that they might glorify his father which is in heaven. ----- Many mourned the sudden quenching of that light many will rise up and call him blessed when “The trumpet shall sound and the dead be raised incorruptible”	Marble Plaque
