

GUILDFORD AREA
UNIVERSITY OF THE THIRD AGE

PROSPECTUS

2020 - 2021

Registered Charity No. 296975

Guildford Area Website

<https://u3asites.org.uk/guildford>

Guildford Area U3A is a local self-help and self-managed group, affiliated to the Third Age Trust, parent body of the U3A. Our aim is to offer older members of the community, who are no longer in full time employment, the possibility to pursue learning informally for pleasure.

Who can join?

No qualifications are necessary; anyone who shares the principles of self-help learning can join. Our philosophy is that everyone in the Third Age has something to contribute.

How does it work?

Our programme each year offers a wide range of educational and cultural study groups, together with recreational and social activities. The atmosphere is informal and friendly. In general, participation in these groups is available to all members on payment of a single annual subscription, subject to reasonable limits on group size. In the limited number of cases where an additional payment is required to attend certain groups, either because we have paid instructors or accompanists or for historical reasons, these exceptions are noted in this prospectus.

In order to participate in a specific activity, you must be in possession of a current U3A Guildford Area Membership Card or email equivalent issued by the Membership Secretary on payment of the annual subscription. Members may be asked to show their membership card, or otherwise demonstrate that they are members, at any session of their chosen group(s), at monthly meetings, or when taking part in visits and outings.

Prospectus

This prospectus contains a timetable of groups, telephone/email contact numbers, times, venues, dates, and current details of all groups, monthly meetings and special events correct at the time of going to press.

Website <https://u3asites.org.uk/guildford>

The website contains the updated version of the prospectus and includes links to current concert and theatre visits, and outings, together with our terms and conditions and other useful information.

How to Join

New members may join via the Join/Renew tab on our website paying the subscription by internet bank transfer, or by post to the Membership Secretary; enrolment begins on 1st July. The subscription entitles you to join any of the groups listed, subject to availability. To join a group once you have enrolled, telephone or email the Group Leader to add your name to their list. As noted above, a few groups charge an additional fee which is noted in this prospectus and most groups ask participants for a small donation to cover tea/coffee or incidental expenses.

How to Renew Membership

Existing members should renew their subscription with the Membership Secretary prior to beginning of the new season, either online or by post. Those wishing to enrol again in their present groups should sign the current group register to ensure that their names are included in the next academic year's list.

Chi Gung

Code 179

Various Chinese healing exercises to cultivate the life energy systems and maintain good health in mind, body and spirit. It involves developing movement (mostly slow and standing), raising awareness, breathing and coordination as well as gentle slapping. The internal alchemy it creates may make a person feel lithe with a body that is working well and a sense of potential for life. It has similarities to Tai Chi but is not a martial art, not rigid and not stylised because the focus is on the individual connecting with their own inner health and well-being.

MOTO

Code 207

This group is for Members On Their Own to meet and socialise with each other, and get together for lunches/dinners as well as outings to events and places of interest. This is a friendship group aimed at active members who are on their own, for whatever reason, or whose partners are too incapacitated to socialise. To be able to offer a programme with a variety of activities members are encouraged to suggest ideas of what they would like to do, and organise /host activities, themselves.

Outings and Theatre Visits

Code 107

We offer a varied programme of visits to gardens, places and exhibitions of interest and theatre trips. Booking forms are included with the Newsletter, whether you receive it online or in print, and are also available on the Guildford U3A website. Theatre trips are only advertised online and by email, as provisional bookings can only be held for a short time. A quick response is essential for these and advisable for all our other trips.

Social Anthropology Visits

Code 203

Outings are arranged, about four times a year, to venues of cultural interest including mosques, museums, areas of London and occasionally Oxford or Cambridge. People are usually free to explore but I can lead a walk if appropriate. They are open to all GU3A members. Notice appears in the newsletter, or by email Alert. Please express your interest to the Group Leader, who will inform you of upcoming events.
