

IN CONSTANT USE

created with members of the U3A

We want to see the building in constant use – the windows softened by wooden frames, in keeping with the architecture, but clear, open – so people can see in; see the constant happenings. Groups grow from drop-ins, offerings, each memory made a drop in the rising river of renewal.

We want to bring recorder players, book club members, poetry readers and writers. We need meeting places that are accessible – open to everyone.

There are only so many venues in Ledbury and so much demand – so much happens here.
We need to fill our homes of heritage with people. Using places brings them back to life; saves them from the changing tides of time.

Even the station has a tribute to the poetry festival. Keep the trains of poetry moving in this town. Keep the wonders of Ledbury in view – the walks and wanderings. Monuments to the fallen. There's so much here to talk about. There's so much here to learn about.
