

Role Description for Lewes Public Lecture Organiser

Historically this has been a non-committee role which gives the organiser complete creative freedom to organise his or her activities in this role according to their personal knowledge, contacts, discretion and timing, analogous to that of any other Lewes u3a group leader.

Currently the present incumbent is organising them online and free to all for simplicity, cost effectiveness and to enable maximum public engagement working on a mission statement 'of our u3a contributing to our wider community by offering interesting, entertaining or controversial speakers who may or may not be members of our u3a.' This may also attract new members to join Lewes u3a.

It has not been so far normally necessary to pay for outside speakers, though exceptionally donations to other charities that have provided speakers have been made. If participants were to be charged for attending then all outside speakers might be expected to be paid.

The Lewes Public Lecture Organiser is always open to suggestions for speakers.
