Roman villa among visits

Some members have experience in working on digs while some of us without practical knowledge are eager to learn about new theories and sites.

Each month members give talks on such topics as antiquarians and archaeologists, excavation and dating techniques, and different archaeological sites.

We have had a fascinating tour around the museum and site of Piddington Roman Villa, and some members attend talks organised by CLASP (Community Landscape Archaeology Survey Project).

Every year the boundaries of archaeological evidence are pushed further back in time and the subject grows. I think we will have plenty to keep us interested for a long time to come.
