

MAY 29TH – BEINN EACH STRATHYRE

Six left Broxden on a beautiful morning heading for Strathyre and the 813 m Corbett, Beinn Each. From the lay-by alongside Loch Lubnaig, the well signposted path (Thank you Scotways!) led steeply uphill on a difficult path through a dense plantation to a main forestry track. This, in turn, led to the hillside and a 'Hill path' sign directing upwards on a steep steady incline. Beinn Each is a bit of a pantomime hill, "yes it is (the summit), "no it isn't", "yes it is", "no it isn't", and so on until we eventually reached the underwhelming summit cairn. Great 360 degree views were enjoyed before a drop down the hillside via scant paths to the forestry track and a return to the cars.

Comrie Croft provided well-earned refreshments before a return to Perth.

Approximate route taken. Total ascent 2260 ft, distance approx. 5 miles, time 4 hrs.

After leaving the lower woodland we start on the open hill

Starting the climb up the lower slopes.

Starts to get steep and the sun is pretty warm

Time for a quick breather

The summit at 813m with its very diminutive cairn

After leaving the summit we commence the decent using a different route

After leaving the open hillside we continue the return to the road through the plantation
